IV. Opinion of the Board of Directors (the “Board”) and Independent Non-executive Directors

1. Opinion of the Board

The Company has amassed a considerable amount of technologies in the area of integrated solutions for integrated circuits. To further consolidate and enhance its market position, the Company considers it necessary to introduce a strategic investor in order to integrate its strengths and resources. The introduction of strategic capital will allow ZTE Microelectronics to strengthen its research and development capabilities and reserve of core patents and increase the standard of its high-end technologies, which will in turn significantly boost the competitiveness of the Company’s integrated solutions for integrated circuits. Meanwhile, the introduction of a strategic investor will also be conducive to improving the corporate governance structure of ZTE Microelectronics, expedite the expansion of its domestic and overseas markets and sales channels and drive the external sales of the Company’s integrated solutions for integrated circuits and foster new profit growth. As an industrial investor operated in a market-oriented approach, IC Fund has access to abundant industry resources and sources of capital operation. The enlisting of IC Fund as a strategic investor of ZTE Microelectronics will present ZTE Microelectronics with more opportunities for development.

In the course of the Capital Increase, if the Company does not waive the preemptive right for subscription and capital contribution while maintaining 90% equity interests, the Company will be required to contribute an amount of RMB2,160 million based on the price for the Capital Increase. Given the current stage of development of ZTE Microelectronics, the level of industry valuation, the track records of ZTE Microelectronics and the credentials of the strategic investor to be brought in, the pricing of the equity interests in ZTE Microelectronics in connection with the share capital increase is within a reasonable range. The Board of the Company concurs to the waiver of the preemptive right for subscription and capital contribution to the proposed share capital increase of ZTE Microelectronics.

2. Opinion of the Independent Non-executive Directors

The Independent Non-executive Directors of the Company are of the view that, taking into consideration of the current stage of development of ZTE Microelectronics, the level of industry valuation, its historical track records and the credentials of the strategic investor to be brought in, the pricing of the equity interests in ZTE Microelectronics in connection with the share capital increase is within a reasonable range, and the Capital Increase will not compromise the interests of the Company or its shareholders; the Board of the Company has considered the matter and the related procedures are in compliance with the Articles of Association of ZTE Corporation and other relevant regulations.

3. Voting at the Board

The “Resolution on the Introduction of a Strategic Investor by ZTE Microelectronics Technology Company Limited*” was considered and approved by a unanimous vote at the Thirty-fourth Meeting of the Sixth Session of the Board of the Company.

V. Effect on the Company

The introduction of IC Fund is an important assurance for achieving the Company’s strategy for integrated circuits. It will help to invigorate the research and development, marketing and management mechanisms of ZTE Microelectronics, increase its investment in research and development, enhance the competitiveness of its products and elevate its status in the industry. ZTE Microelectronics is expected to embark thereafter on a positive track of accelerated development, supply more competitive integrated solutions for integrated circuits and enhance the Company’s overall competitiveness in the market. Moreover, ZTE Microelectronics will remain a subsidiary of the Company which will continue to be reported in the consolidated financial statements of the Company following the completion of the Capital Increase. As such, there will be no material impact on the financial conditions and operating results of the Company.
